A Family Passive

Physicians are not inclined to recommend self medication to the laity. Yet there is one need says the American Analyst, which they are drast unable to supply. We refer to the "family laxative." The family physician is able to prescribe for the most complicated and obscure of railadies and yet is often puzzled to know just what to give when saked for a remedy which can be kept in the house for family use as a laxative, that shall be effective free from danger and not unpleasant to take. When absent on our summer vacation we were asked by four different parties, representing as many families, what we thought of the "Syran of Figs. Not one word did we voits are on the subject, and we were somewhat surprised to find that there was this small token of the very general use of that preparation. These parties said they derived more benefit from it and found it more pleasant to take than anything of the kind they had ever used. The simple question with them was, is it a dangerous compound? We informed them that its active ingredient was a preparation of senns, and that it was entirely free from danger. With this assurance they volunteered the information that they should continue to keep it in the house.

they should continue to keep it in the jourse.

The therapeutical properties of senna are so well known that comment on this seems unnecessive. It might be well to notice, however, that Bartholow says it is "a very safe and service—able exthactic," and that it is "highly prized as a remedy for constitution. It is use "is not followed by intestinal toppor and constipation.

The simple trath of the matter is, we investing other too few preparations which we can ressume at ocur families as effective laxatives. But the California Fig Syrup company has one of the most desirable constitutions for this purpose with which we are familiariation, therefore there is no scretch in the person who use this laxation, therefore there is no scretch in the persons who use this laxation, therefore there is no scretch in the persons who use this laxation, therefore there is no scretch in the persons who use this laxation, therefore there is no scretch in the persons who use this laxation, therefore there is no scretch in the persons who use this laxation is a property of the person when the same persons the composition of this analysis. In the highest terms about A we are pleased to notice that a number of physicians are prefig it.

The explorers were Lieut. Francqui and Dr. Cornet, in the service of the Congo Free State. They traced the Linalaba river from its foundain head, and made a discovery that, as far as is known, is duplicated nowhere in Africa.

the Limitaba river head, and made a discovery that, as far as is known, is duplicated nowhere in Africa.

Imagine a narrow stream flowing placidly between its rather low banks. It has gradually been gathering volume from little contributions that a dozen or afteen tributaries have supplied. The channel is quite deep, though not wide. Nearer and nearer the water approaches a mountain pass to the north, which at a distance appears to lieve no passage through. Suddenly the water rinkes into a rift in these hills, and for many a mile it tumbles along, algranging between two giuentle, perpendicular walls of solid rock. Sometimes it falls hearing as a cataract, and then again it is merely a rapid, with a speed five times as great as that with which it enters the hills.

Rev. E. B. Bagby, the chaptain of the house of representatives, is only a years of age and looks even younger. He is a member of the Christian church, to which Mr. Gardied belonged. He was born in King and Queen county, Virginia, and grew to manhood in Bishmond. He graduated at Kentucky University and received the degree of bachelor of divinity at Yale. His first charge was in the mountains of West Virginia, where he preached for three small churches. He was stationed for a sheet time at Newport News, Va., and was engaged in exangelistic work for more than a year. In this he was very successful, securing a large number of converts to the churches he visited. In 1891 the Vermont Avenue Christian church of Washington builts mission chapel at the corner of Ninth and D streets northeast. Mr. Ragby dedicated this chapel and held a series
